The mockup referred to in paragraph 4 would consist of putting a series of lights on stands in approximately the same positions which they might be permanently mounted, if found suitable, and providing a temporary platform for the camera in the approximate position in which we expect it will be finally placed. This mockup would not do violence in any way to the Auditorium, and we feel that it would provide a realistic enough setup in which a test film could be made and judgment rendered as to whether or not the "experts'" proposals, if implemented, would meet our needs.
